CHAMPION MET DEAD BY POISON

Frenzied Fans See Victoria Take Lead In Dominion Finals

Blue Ribbons Basketball Team Stages Terrific Rally, Overtaking Windsor

Win Match in Overtime Play

Chuck Chapman Saves Game by Converting Foul Near Close; Score 39 to 35

While frenzied fans, who jammed the building to the rafters, roared and cheered as no crowd has since Victoria's hectic hockey final days, Blue Ribbons, Western Canadian champions took a one-game lead in the third lap of the Dominion basketball finals at the Willows yesterday evening, coming from behind with a tremendous finish to beat out Windsor - Walkerville Alumni 39 to 35. As a result the local aces will take the floor to-night with a two to one margin over the eastern title-holders in the fourth of the best three out of five games series.

It was a game no weak heart could stand. Tension was tremendous as the rangy Victorians battled their way up hill in the last two minutes of regular play from a five-point deficit to equalize the count at 31 to 31 with Chuck Chapman's foul shot. Eight seconds from the close, supporters in the upper boxes kicked the boards from their barriers, sending them down on newspapers below. Shouts came from the women and wild shouts and hoarse whistles from the men who had set up a bedlam in the closing minutes.

SPEED AND HEIGHT

Victoria's victory came from the inspired final efforts of the Ribbons, who, aided by their unusual height and speed, were able to snatch the game out of the hands of their smaller opponents.

In spite of the close checking, the sharp-shooters of the rival squads broke away to register good scores. But it was their splendid marksmanship, not the feats of the guards, that let the count rise as high as it did. Windsor again tried their center-pivot-block attack, but the Ribbons were watching it closely and only at times was it successful. The easterners, resorting to a style of play they had not shown before, sent in a shower of baskets from long shots midway in the second half, unable as they were to work in close consistently.

The Victorians put up a great fight all the way and the Alumni gave a polished performance throughout.

SENSATIONAL GUARDING

Sensational was the guarding of Don King, Windsor, who held Lynn Patrick without a field goal throughout the first half, and until the last two minutes of play in the second, when the local ace got away to help overcome what appeared a sufficient Alumni margin.

Sutton Again To Fore In China

The shadow of Gen. Francis A. (One-armed) Sutton, well-known in British Columbia, is again being cast over events in China.

With the arrival of the T. V. Soong party here by the President Jefferson, it was learned that Gen. Sutton, former adviser to the late Marshal Chang Tso-lin and director-general of his arsenal at Mukden, is now in the service of the war lords of Anhui, and working in conjunction with Gen. Wu Pei-fu, his former enemy.

Sutton, it was stated, is in Peking at the present time, and is active in the direction of military operations in North China, although he keeps his direct in the background.

A colorful adventurer, Gen. Sutton has been right and wrong. He became noted for his part in the designing of trench mortars in the World War. He built the first modern golf course in Siberia, and in 1921 went to Shanghai, where his career in China commenced. He manufactured trench mortars for Gen. Tang Sen, and in 1922 became the adviser of Chang Tso-lin.

PEACE RIVER ADVOCATE

He came to Canada in June, 1927, was a prominent figure in Victoria and conducted a campaign throughout the province for the development of the Peace River district.

CAGE CAPERS

By "STARDUSTER"

Windsor's slick-moving sheikhs may have their own preferences for blonds and brunettes but it's a cinch they will never give a redhead a tumble again after what Chuck Chapman did to them yesterday evening.

Victoria redheads are the hottest stuff in the world. Look at what Torchy Peden has done to the bike-riders and now look what our new Torchy went and done. Torchy Chapman stole a game away from Windsor as coolly as a Vancouver gunman looting a bank.

For coolness and absolute control of every fibre in his make-up Chuck Chapman gets the waffles. With eight seconds to go, Windsor leading by one point, and the crowd dizzy and almost like wet-wash lines from the excitement, Chuck had to make the free shot. Referee Yeo appealed for silence but the crowd was almost out of control. After a minute there was a brief hush and Chuck took the mark and the ball took wings and on it hung the fate of Blue Ribbons.

And what a goody antic that ball went through. Test pairs of eyes of peering athletes and every eye and glass eye of the fans were riveted on that inflated piece of leather. It struck the rim. "Too bad," moaned the fans, "it's not going in." It bounced in the air and jittered about like a maiden, who has been asked for her first kiss and doesn't know what to do. No, sir, it wasn't going in. What a tension! Once again the ball struck the rim and bounced into the air, but this time it had better control of itself. It acted like the spinner of forty who has been threatened with her first kiss and figured she had better take it before the opportunity passed. Now came down the ball a second time and the basket looked so coaxingly at it that it dropped right through and the score was tied.

If the crowd at certain stages of the game previous to the converting of that free throw had been approaching a state where the gates of Essondale loomed ominously for them they were certainly fit for strait-jackets when the final gun boomed out twice. "One girl got out on the floor and did a hornpipe and she had her sailor with her and everybody was shouting at his neighbor and nobody was listening."

And then came a bad bit of behavior on the part of the Victoria fans, or at least a number of them, presumably those who are not in the habit of attending basketball games and do not know what the rules are. They think that any time a Victoria boy is penalized the referee is "rotten" and when a Windsor player has a foul called on him he got what was coming to him. When Referee Yeo appealed for silence while the teams were taking a breather before commencement of the overtime he was anxious to explain what the overtime would be. But some of the fans still inebriated with the spirit of that dying rally refused to let him have his say.

STABBED MAN PASSES AWAY

Canadian Press
Vancouver, May 4.—John Russell, victim of a stabbing affray on Tuesday night, died in the evening John Prosser Hospital this morning. George James Adams, occupant of a neighboring shack to Russell's on the waterfront, is held by police on a charge of "voluntary murder."

Mrs. Russell, the widow, is held as a material witness. According to police, Russell was rowing with Adams and on their return they were met by Russell, and a fight ensued in the boat on the beach. Russell's abdomen was slashed.

Detectives yesterday searched the beach for the knife used in the stabbing, but failed to find such a weapon.

Later in the evening John Prosser, who resides in the rear of 2816 Wall Street, delivered to Detective A. F. Nickerson, in charge of a patrol, a knife and key he said he had found about five feet from the rear of Adams' shack.

Police have not identified this knife with the stabbing. It has been tagged with other exhibits in the case.

LOSES HIS POST AS NAZIS GAIN

Theodore Duesterberg, above, is one of the casualties listed in other groups in Germany as the Nazis take over control in field after field. Second in command of Germany's 1,000,000 Steel Helmets, he was ousted when Franz Seidler, their founder and leader, joined the Nazi party and handed his army over to Hitler. Duesterberg's paternal grandfather was a Jew.

LOCAL CHOIR WINS HONORS

Metropolitan Church Choir Under F. L. Tupman Gets Prize at Vancouver

Interpretation and True Pitch Brings Victory in Keen Competition

The Metropolitan Church Choir of Victoria, under the baton of F. L. Tupman, was awarded the David Spencer Challenge Shield for choirs by Dr. J. F. Staton, the adjudicator, at the Vancouver Musical Festival yesterday evening with a total of 173 marks. First United Church, Vancouver, placed second with 171 marks, while in third place came Queen's Avenue Church, New Westminster, with 167 points.

In the first piece both the Metropolitan choir and the First United choir obtained eighty-six marks, but in the second number the Victoria singers were given eighty-seven marks, while their opponents received one less.

In his adjudication of the second number, Dr. Staton had the pianist sound the closing chord, and then pointed out to the audience how perfectly the Victoria choir had kept the pitch. He warmly commended the choir on its excellent interpretation. Both choirs were almost equal as far as musical qualities were concerned, but in the interpretation the Metropolitan singers were a shade better.

The Victoria choir returned home this morning greatly elated over its success. In the local festival three weeks ago the Metropolitan choir was victorious, defeating First United.

STORM GROWS ON MEAL TAX

Hotelmen's Delegation to See Cabinet; Says Tourist Trade Will Suffer

Ice Cream Sundae Trade Not Paying; Boarding House Keepers Aroused

Not only is the B.C. Government's new meal levy under the Hospitals Aid Act ultra vires, but the government itself will soon find it is unenforceable and it will be abandoned, according to executives of the group of Victoria hotels and restaurants who will join with a similar group from Vancouver on Friday to form a protesting delegation to meet Premier Tolmie and his cabinet.

Operators of ice cream lunch counters and pavilions joined in the protest to-day when it became definite that their tea-stand, pastry-ice cream services came under the tax, so that one person acting as host to one or more others would have to pay a tax of the total bill for what the three had come to over fifty cents.

The operator of one of the largest ice cream resorts announced to-day that although the tax situation was (Turn to Page 3, Col. 7)

Premier Bennett Says Measure Will be Introduced; Discussion May Delay Prorogation

Canadian Press
Ottawa, May 4.—The redistribution bill will be introduced in the Commons this session, Premier Bennett so informed the House this afternoon.

It may delay prorogation, depending on the degree of unanimity among the redistribution committee members.

Beginning next Tuesday the Commons will meet at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, and the usual Wednesday night recess from 6 p.m. will be resumed. This was announced by the Prime Minister, who stated that on Monday he would put forward a motion to this effect.

The redistribution schedule would be completed as early as possible, Mr. Bennett said. If the committee to which the matter had been referred was unable to report an agreement the bill would be reported to the House, which would then have the opportunity of giving effect to whatever conclusions it might reach.

MONTREAL SCHEME FOR BEAUFARNOIS

Shareholders Accept Plan For Underwriting of First Mortgage Bonds; Approved by Bondholders

Montreal, May 4.—Common stock holders of the Beaufarinois Stock Corporation to-day voted by a huge majority to accept the "Montreal Power" plan for reorganizing the financial structure of the company, endorsed by bondholders.

In contrast with the turbulent gathering of the Beaufarinois yesterday, to-day's session of the common shareholders was merely formal. Only about thirty people were present.

The motion to accept the "Montreal Power" scheme met with little opposition, being carried by 1,000,308 votes to 126.

TRADE TREATY TO BE EXTENDED

Ottawa, May 4.—The government intends extending the New Zealand trade treaty, which will expire May 24, Premier Bennett intimated to-day. Among the measures to be introduced before this session of Parliament ends will be one to give the cabinet power to extend the trade pact.

URGES TRADE RECIPROCITY

Fair Exchange Necessary, John W. Ross, Montreal, Tells U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Big Exports Alone Must Not be Considered by Each Country, He States

Canadian Press
Washington, May 4.—Conferees between President Roosevelt and world statesmen, those that have been concluded with Prime Minister Bennett of Canada, Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain and others and those now being held at the White House, will bring about a successful conclusion of the Economic Conference at London.

Such is the belief of John W. Ross of Montreal, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, expressed in an address here to-day at the twenty-first annual meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Ross' address was one of the two features of to-day's sessions. This evening President Roosevelt will speak and business leaders are looking to him for definite indications as to how far the United States Government is willing to go to revive industry.

Mr. Ross also expressed the belief that instead of embarrassing business between the United States and Canada, the Ottawa Imperial Conference, held last year and participated in by all commonwealths in the British Empire, had laid a foundation for free trade among all nations.

"There is ample scope," Mr. Ross added, "for a more satisfactory adjustment of tariffs between our Dominion and your republic without danger of encroachment on empire treaties."

At another point in his address Mr. Ross said that the United States and Canada were to trade with each other there was one outstanding fact both must observe, and it was that the trade must be fair trade or it could not persist.

"Among other things this world must return to sound fundamental principles, and we on this continent should be the first to demonstrate that we, at least, understand the meaning of trade to be the fair exchange of goods and services between nations as between individuals," the Canadian speaker said.

"If we are to continue regarding each other's markets as convenient locations for big exports alone," he continued, "we are merely deceiving ourselves. The visualizing of any country as an export market must be accompanied by a shared estimate of that country as a source of profitable imports. Do not lose sight of the fact that imports can be as profitable as exports."

NO HAMILTON GOLD EXPORT

Hamilton, Ont., May 4.—Hamilton cannot secure gold from the Dominion government to meet its obligations in New York, Mayor John Peables to-day was informed in a letter from Humphrey Mitchell, Labor M.P. for East Hamilton.

It was explained that while the Dominion Government at the time Calgary was provided with gold, the United States government was prepared to redeem Canadian notes in gold, it would not permit exportation of the precious metal.

MacDonald Reports To British Commons On His Visit To U.S.

Premier Tells of Progress Made on Economic Problems During Talks With Roosevelt; House to Stage Full Dress Debate on Development

Canadian Press
London, May 4.—Prime Minister MacDonald announced in the Commons to-day that Britain favors the United States proposal for a tariff trade during the period of the World Economic Conference, with safeguards for Britain's special tariff position.

The Prime Minister quickly roused the members to most intense interest. They craned their necks and sat on the edges of their seats as, at the outset of his report on his discussions in Washington with President Roosevelt, he jumped to the question of the tariff trade.

With tariff issues paramount in the house, Mr. MacDonald made it clear that while President Roosevelt, Edouard Herriot of France and he had agreed on plans for convening the World Economic Conference here in June, the Washington talks had brought no definite agreements in regard to policy.

Nor had there been any solution of world problems, he said, although the exchange of views was "most encouraging."

The Prime Minister announced war debts had been "thoroughly examined" on all their aspects, but he said no fuller statement was possible at the present time as the problem "necessarily has not yet reached the stage of agreement."

He declared the suggestion of "safeguard" for Britain's special tariff position, being connected with the tariff trade suggestion, had been considered "reasonable" by the Americans.

The British position in regard to tariffs, he said, was different from that of nations which are already high tariff countries with policies of passage by the United States Congress.

MORE MEN BACK ON B.C. PAYROLLS

British Columbia and Maritime Lead in Climb Back to Normal

Ten Retail Groups Report Better Trade and One Reports Decrease

British Columbia and the Maritime Provinces are leading Canada in the climb back to normal employment conditions according to figures for April released to-day by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Totals for the whole of Canada show there was the usual seasonal falling off in employment which marks April, but the decline was smaller this year than it was in 1932.

British Columbia and the Maritimes, however, not only did not share in the regular seasonal decline of unemployment customary in April but had more men on payrolls than there were in the previous month.

An advance was indicated in British Columbia, according to the returns tabulated by the bureau from 766 firms with 28,841 employees of $78 more than in the preceding month. A larger increase had been noted on April 1 of a year ago, when employment was 28,841 employees of $78 more than in the preceding month.

In the Maritime provinces 571 employers enlarged their payrolls by 1,110 persons to 54,630.

STORE BUSINESS UP
Index numbers of retail sales issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics for March show increased sales for ten groups and decreased sales for one group as compared with February. The combined index rose from 61.6 to 72.8.

Conservatives Vote Against Convention

Vancouver, May 4.—The Vancouver City Conservative Association executive has gone on record as opposed to a convention of British Columbia Conservatives previous to the provincial general election. The association endorsed the action of the executive of the British Columbia Conservative Association which recently took the same attitude. Four of the city members in the Legislature were present: Hon. R. L. Mathison, K.C.; T. H. Kirk, Lieut.-Col. Nelson Spencer and William Dick. The first-named three favored holding a convention.

CHERISH MEMORY OF BENEFACTRESS

Women and Children Lose Friend in Death of Mary Ellen Smith, Says T. D. Pattullo, B.C. Liberal Leader

"In the death of Mary Ellen Smith, British Columbia loses not only one of its most outstanding women, but one of its most outstanding citizens," T. D. Pattullo, British Columbia Liberal leader, said to-day.

"On the death of her husband, Ralph Smith, who had held public office for many years, she herself became a member of the Legislature."

"While the late Mrs. Smith will be best remembered for her work on behalf of women and children, she had a well-grounded grasp of all public questions, and a valuable sense of proportion in public affairs."

"For many years she was president of the British Columbia Liberal Association, and the ability with which she conducted the association's various conventions could not be surpassed by anyone."

"Before leaving for the north last month, I saw the late Mrs. Smith in Vancouver. While she was suffering from a recent accident, her mind was as clear as a bell, and she was eagerly looking forward to the approaching campaign, and ready, as she said to me, 'to do the right thing.'"

Open Verdict Returned as Inquest Into Mysterious Case of Vancouver School Teacher Is Brought to Close; Dr. J. F. C. Vance Reconstructs Death Drama For Jury

Ransom Note Traced To School Typewriter

Ashley Described as Clean-living Youth of Regular Habits; Motive For Death Is Problem; Father Takes Active Part at Hearing, Questioning Witnesses

While definitely showing that Stewart Ashley, young Vancouver school teacher whose body was found in a slough on the Industrial Reserve, died from prussic acid poisoning, the inquest this morning left several of the mysterious angles of the case still unsolved and the coroner's jury returned an open verdict, reading as follows:

"That Stewart Ashley came to his death on or about April 22 from the effects of poisoning, that is to say, potassium cyanide, and that we do not consider there is sufficient evidence to decide when, how, where or by whom it was administered."

This was the formal verdict drawn up by the coroner, after the jury foreman gave the decision that Ashley died from cyanide poison, administered "by person or persons unknown."

Coroner E. C. Hart told the juryman they should not be guided by "newspaper or barber shop talk" in reaching their verdict.

The fact that Ashley died from potassium cyanide, or prussic acid poisoning, was brought out by Inspector J. F. C. Vance, Vancouver city analyst and criminologist, who took up the case after Ashley's body was found in the slough near the Normal School bridge on April 23, ten days after he disappeared in Vancouver.

TRACED TO NORMAL SCHOOL
The ransom note received by Ashley's father were typed on a noiseless typewriter in the office of the secretary at the Vancouver Provincial Normal School, according to H. B. MacLean, handwriting and typewriting expert.

Ashley often visited this office and was last seen there by Miss Helmi Dodge, the secretary, about a week or ten days before his disappearance.

The clothing recovered from the slough was linked with Ashley by the cleaner's identification number and Ashley's father said the trousers were like those the youth had worn.

Potassium cyanide was kept by nature students at the Normal School, and might have been obtainable in the building.

Frustrated with these various facts, in addition to other evidence which has been adduced by the police, the jury studied the whole case at length.

MRS. M. E. SMITH ENDS NOTABLE CAREER

Mrs. M. E. Smith leaves an imperishable monument in a record of public service marked by unusual ability and fine humanitarianism. She will be gratefully remembered by a large element of this province, including women and children, the aged and indigent, who have been benefited directly by the legislation which was inspired by her sympathetic concern for their welfare, and directed into practical policy by her exceptional personal force and influence. To her more than perhaps to any other person in our public life is due a better appreciation by our chief law-making institution of the fact that government is not merely a matter of business in a narrow sense, but should concern itself also with the social needs of the people; that its chief aim should be the promotion of a happy and healthy citizenship.

Long before Mrs. Smith actively associated herself with public life she was widely known in the Dominion as a woman of exceptional attainments. For many years her husband, the late Ralph Smith, was an outstanding figure in both federal and provincial politics, and to him she proved an ideal helpmeet, supplementing his notable talents as a popular parliamentarian by her sound judgment, invincible optimism and capacity for friendship.

During a long residence at Ottawa she enjoyed the acquaintance and esteem of all of the eminent leaders of that period regardless of political distinction. Both Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Robert Borden were numbered among her close friends, while her interest in many other aspects of the life of the capital, and her charm as a hostess, made her one of the most prominent figures in the orbit which surrounds officialdom at the heart of the nation.

Mrs. Smith's active public career, however, began with the death of her husband early in 1917, shortly after he had become Minister of Finance in the Brewster government. With characteristic courage she took up the torch then laid down, and offering herself as a candidate for Vancouver, was elected to the Legislature by a large majority. Later she was appointed to the ministry as President of the Council, and thus became internationally known as the first woman to be a cabinet minister in the English-speaking world. As a member of the House she naturally specialized in social legislation, and persisted in her championship of this cause until she had the satisfaction of seeing many measures involving particularly the welfare of her sex and the home embodied in the provincial statutes. She also proved to be a successful political campaigner, and on the hustings always gave a good account of herself. Her wide information, resourcefulness, spontaneous wit and courage enabled her to make herself entirely at home in any situation and in any assembly.

She bore the infirmities of illness with characteristic cheerfulness, and until the seizure which ended her life she retained her active interest in public affairs and her unconquerable faith in the future of mankind. Her passing will be mourned far beyond the boundaries of this province, especially by the legion of friends who knew her well and had good reason to appreciate her many distinguishing qualities of heart and mind.

CANADIAN TRADE AND HOW IT IS DISTRIBUTED

There is a striking similarity in the lists of Canada's principal customers in external trade and of her main sources of supply. The Dominion sells chiefly to the same countries from which she buys. In 1932, says Agricultural and Industrial Progress in Canada, a Canadian Pacific Railway monthly publication, thirteen countries embraced the five leading sources of Canadian imports and the five leading export markets for Canadian products among both empire and foreign nations. The five leading empire markets for Canadian goods in that year were the United Kingdom, Australia, Newfoundland, British South Africa and New Zealand, in the order named. The five chief sources of supply within the empire were the United Kingdom, Australia, British India, British South Africa and Jamaica. Among foreign countries the United States, Holland, Belgium, France and Japan formed the principal markets for Canadian products, while the United States, Germany, France, Japan and Holland were the chief sources of Canadian imports.

The United States was the main source of Canadian imports among all countries in 1932, but the largest market for Canadian products was found in the United Kingdom. On the whole, however, foreign countries led empire countries in both respects. Total exports of Canadian products in 1932 were valued at $493,808,841, of which $276,651,888 went to foreign countries and $217,156,953 were sold within the empire. Total imports into the Dominion were worth $452,614,257, of which the empire supplied $128,057,615 and foreign countries $324,556,642. Among individual countries the United Kingdom took $178,171,680 of Canadian exports and was the origin of $93,508,143 of Canadian imports. The United States, on the other hand, took $162,630,779 of Canadian exports while furnishing $263,549,346 of Canadian imports.

Among empire countries, after the United Kingdom, Australia led in 1932 in both Canadian imports and Canadian exports. Imports from Australia had a value of $5,845,187, while exports to the Commonwealth were $7,133,007. Newfoundland came third among empire countries as a market for Canadian goods, but her sales to the Dominion were comparatively small. Canadian exports to Newfoundland were valued at $5,644,747 and Canadian imports from the island $576,435. Third as a source of Canadian imports came British India at $4,747,818, while Canadian exports to that country were valued at $2,731,820. British South Africa was fourth in both imports and exports, the former being $4,085,341 and the latter $4,415,872. New Zealand came fifth among exports at $3,405,667, while Jamaica held fifth place among imports at $3,293,316. Imports from New Zealand had a value of $855,723 and exports to Jamaica were worth $2,383,521.

Among foreign countries, after the United States, Holland held first place as a market for Canadian products, while Germany led in imports into Canada. Exports to Holland had a value of $16,907,307, while imports from that country were $4,367,015. Imports from Germany were worth $9,786,339, while that country took Canadian products to the value of $7,798,100. France came third among foreign countries as a source of Canadian imports with a value of $9,514,215, and fourth among importers of Canadian goods at $14,468,798. Belgium came third as a market for Canadian products at $14,948,482, while at the same time she provided $4,047,005 of Canadian imports. Japan held fourth place among sources of Canadian imports with Holland fifth, while Japan also held fifth place as a market for Canadian goods. Exports to Japan largely exceeded imports, the former being valued at $11,995,887 compared with $4,551,059 for the latter.

MR. DE VALERA PREPARES FOR A TEST ON REPUBLIC ISSUE

Immediately following the vote of the Dail Eireann to remove the oath of allegiance to the Crown from the constitution of the Irish Free State, President de Valera announced he would ask the people for their authority to proclaim a republic. It is considered likely in some quarters that he will take a referendum in the hope that public opinion will sanction the severance of the tie between the Free State and the British Commonwealth of Nations.

In the opinion of Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Secretary of State for the Dominions, the abolition of the oath does not amount to an act of secession, since the allegiance to the Crown of the members of the Free State Parliament does not depend upon the swearing of an oath. It simply means, of course, that a formula contained in the constitution, to which many of the members objected, has been removed. Allegiance to the Crown now becomes a personal matter and without constitutional significance. Any member of the Dail may go into the privacy of his own quarters and swear allegiance to his heart's content and mean it just as much as if he went through the formal ceremony—perhaps more. Only when he has to decide what his course will be in the event of a majority deciding that the Irish Free State shall go its own way may he find himself in somewhat of a dilemma. This also would be a personal matter.

The majority in the upper House is opposed to Mr. de Valera's policy and Mr. Cosgrave still commands a substantial anti-republic following in the Dail Eireann. Thus, unless these Senators and Deputies are prepared to take the oath of allegiance to the republic which the President wants to establish, they would have to resign, and to all intents and purposes become aliens in their own land as far as taking public office is concerned. The population in the mass no doubt would be taken into the republic and automatically become citizens of the new state.

Future developments in the Free State naturally will be watched with considerable interest by Ulster as well as by the rest of the member states of the British Commonwealth. The Free State's population is approximately 3,000,000, compared with about 1,260,000 in Ulster. Mr. de Valera's long-cherished ideal has been a united Ireland free of all connections with the empire. The majority of the people of the northern section of the country—at least Premier Craigavon said so a few months ago—do not want to sever the tie.

If the Irish Free State decides in favor of a republic, it will regret it. Britain can stand the tariff war which has been going on between the two countries for several months better than the Irish Free State can. A few of the anti-Home Rule elements in the House of Commons will probably advocate holding the Free State by force. But that formula went out of date with the growth of the empire and the arrival of the Dominions at the stage of complete nationhood. Mr. de Valera, however, may change his mind, or perhaps the people, put squarely up against the proposal, will consider it better to remain in the empire, even though they may put economic before sentimental considerations.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

AUSTRALIA TURNS THE CORNER
 A. Grenfell Price in The Spring Yale Review

In its initial stages, the world depression fell with particular weight on the weak debtor nations. Very many defaulted. Yet the Commonwealth of Australia, a heavily burdened debtor, met its external obligations successfully and weathered the storm of internal debt difficulties, by general sacrifices distributed throughout the whole community. The way in which this was done may thus be of interest to others, who are still deeply loaded with external debt. The story indicates the vital necessity of maintaining the psychological level of public confidence in matters financial. It illustrates also the value of national economic planning and of co-operation in a time of crisis; and it supports the truth of the adage, "Look after the budget, and the debt will look after itself."

We go through the smelter at Trail—and feel that we have survived inferno—among machines that man has made—so much bigger than himself—and the experience is exhausting and rather terrifying.

By H.B.W.

CANNY SCOT

BEFORE YOU START to go through the Trail Smelter, a canny Scotman, evidently employed for the purpose, makes you promise not to take any notes on the metallurgical processes, lest you leave with some of the trade secrets of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company. This is really an exquisite touch. For no visitor who goes through the Trail Smelter, through this endless jungle of machinery which sprawls over 160 acres above the Columbia, has any notion what the processes are about. Here you are half through you are sure that no one can know what they are about, not even S. G. Blaylock, that wizard of metals and chemistry who built here the largest smelting plant in the world. Instead, it seems to run itself by a grim mechanical intelligence of its own, and the little men who wander about in the immensity are its servants rather than its masters—pigmies who run errands and bring food to the devouring maw of this monster.

We have just been through the smelter, or part of it. We couldn't endure any more. After walking what seemed to be ten miles up and down stairs, along endless passages, between deafening machinery, beside the withering heat of blast furnaces, through mists of acid fumes, we were completely exhausted; not so much by mere physical effort as by the size, the noise, the movement, the rather terrifying power and ruthlessness of the machines which men have built here.

PERFECT PRODUCT

HERE, INDEED, on the brown hills of the interior, within a few yards of the city of Calgary, the most perfect of the untouched wilderness, stands the perfect product of the Machine Age. From one window of this hotel bedroom you can see the blue mountains of Kootenay, their immaculate snow glistening in the sun. From the other you look down at the city of Calgary, every clinging to the hill, with its smokestacks shooting up into the clouds. It seems strangely out of place, as if it had no business here so far from anything, as if it had suddenly sprouted out of the earth like a great, hideous weed.

Of course, I can't tell you anything intelligible about it. I can only tell you that long trainloads of concentrates come here from distant mines, looking like black cinders, and that after a while they emerge as shiny blocks of silver, smooth bars of lead, glistening slabs of zinc. Very few men understand it all. This red-faced fellow who watches his huge furnaces and the molten lead pouring out of them as clear and colorless as water, he has no notion, I dare say, how it got there, what chemistry and physics are involved in the solid rock of the Sullivan Mine. That boy in the cab of the traveling crane, hour after hour he lifts pails of molten metal as big as your automobile, runs them a hundred yards up the plant and dumps them, missing, in another furnace. Why he probably has no idea. These fellows who pour liquid zinc into little moulds and skim off the top as you would skim milk they don't know where it came from, or where it is going to.

MASTERS

IT DOESN'T MATTER. Somebody knows. Somewhere in this spreading web of machinery men are studying these processes in their test tubes, under their microscopes. They are the masters of these forces which seem to be running on here out of control. Patiently an engineer works out the plain way to you how zinc sulphide comes in from Kimberley, is roasted to drive off the sulphur, and how the resulting zinc sulphate—that means, I think, that there is oxygen in it somewhere, but who cares?—is dissolved in acid and finally precipitated by electricity on thin sheets of aluminium.

You can't understand it. All you can see is a stream of clear liquid welling into a wash-tub twenty feet across, and you are told that the zinc is dissolved in it, that this solid metal has been turned into water which seems clean enough to drink. You don't believe it until you see how the zinc has left the liquid again, rushed out of the acid to gather, like chickens under their mother's wings, upon the aluminium sheets.

Here, again, is a mighty tub of the grey duty which runs away between your fingers like talcum powder. You can't believe it is pure silver until you see it pouring out of a spout into square moulds. Close by some fellows are weighing blocks of it the size of bread loaves, each about eighty pounds, worth $250. Where has it all come from? A few minutes ago we saw it in the form of a black, oozing mud which had emerged from a furnace half a mile away.

JUST LIKE HELL

IT IS ALL unbelievable and unreal, like a nightmare. Apparently you could wander on forever from one ghastly chamber to another, like a lost soul in Dante's inferno, never getting anywhere, never seeing the sun or breathing the fresh air.

machines, how powerless and unimportant! Here are four and a half million dollars' worth of dynamos, and a young chap sits at a desk and controls them with a few switches. Here is an engine-room where deafening compressors are pounding away with the power of 10,000 giants, and an old man, the only one in sight, sits by a table eating his lunch, a dripping slab of rhubarb pie.

STRANGE CREATURES

TO AN OUTSIDER it is overwhelming. He feels all the time that one of those swaying buckets of red-hot liquid metal is going to pour down his neck and spoil his collar, that he will be caught in one of those whirling flywheels, run over by one of those dinky miniature railway trains that dash hither and thither ceaselessly, or electrocuted on the trolley wire. But the men who work here seem strangely happy. They like the Company. They think they are getting a square deal, and with them, Blaylock seems to be a kind of demi-god, an amiable Olympian figure who sits on his hill and works his wonders.

As you emerge for a moment out of the smoke and grime, it is strange to see a group of men in overalls sitting in a tiny patch of sunshine between the blackened walls, and enjoying their noon hour's rest, as contentedly as if they were holding a picnic on some cool green sward. It is strange because men don't seem to belong here at all among the machines they have created. It is only this little human touch—an old fellow basking in the sun while he eats the sandwiches from his lunch pail, some young lads whistling as they go off shift—that makes you realize the human power behind all this, man's endless ingenuity and unquenchable faith in himself.

Saskatoon, May 4 (Canadian Press)—The annual convocation of Emmanuel College, the Anglican institution attached to the University of Saskatchewan and the oldest branch of the university, was held here yesterday evening. Six graduating students were granted degrees in theology, and the honorary degree of doctor of divinity was conferred on Bishop Walter Burn of the recently created diocese of Saskatchewan.

WHAT STOMACH ACIDITY IS AND WHAT YOU CAN DO ABOUT IT

According to many authorities, some 80% of the people of today have acid stomach. This is because so many foods, comprising the modern diet, are acid forming foods.

It usually makes itself felt in sour stomach, indigestion, headaches, nausea, "gas," biliousness, and most frequently in stomach pains that come about thirty minutes after eating. So you can easily tell if you have it.

Now Quickly and Easily Corrected

If you do have acid stomach, don't worry about it. You can correct it in a very simple manner. Just do this. It will alkalize your acid soaked stomach almost immediately. You will feel like another person. TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia with a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Neutralizes Food and Tobacco Acids a few minutes after taking.

What This Does

That's all you do. But you do it regularly, EVERY DAY, so long as you have any symptoms of distress. This acts to neutralize the stomach acids that foster your "upset" stomach, that invite headaches and that feeling of lassitude and lost energy.

Try it. Results will amaze you. Your head will be clear. You'll forget you have a stomach. BUT—be careful that you get REAL milk of magnesia when you buy genuine PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia. See that the name "Phillips" is stamped clearly on the label.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

Pattullo Opens Islands Campaign Next Monday

Special to The Times

Garages, May 4.—T. D. Pattullo, leader of the Liberal party in British Columbia, will outline the platform of his party at a public meeting here on Monday.

Alex McDonald, Liberal candidate for the Islands constituency, will also speak at the meeting, which will open the Liberal election campaign in this district.

The Liberal leader has received numerous requests from Salt Spring Island to meet the electors and expound his policy. Considerable interest is being shown in the approaching appearance of Mr. Pattullo here and a large turnout is expected to hear the Liberal chief.

Mr. McDonald, who is contesting the seat, is well-known and popular throughout the islands.

THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES, MAY 4, 1908

From the Files Daily Times

Weather Forecast—Victoria and vicinity: Generally fair, higher temperatures.

The sale of seats for the New York Symphony Orchestra, which appear here under the leadership of Walter Damrosch, opened yesterday at the Victoria Theatre.

Two matters which are likely to come in for a good discussion at this evening's council meetings are Alderman Gleason's amendment to the liquor license of saloons, bottle shops and wholesale establishments, and the other measure of which the same alderman has given notice providing for the closing of poolrooms and other such places, as well as cigar and fruit stores.

The intermediate lacrosse season opens on Wednesday evening at the Oak Bay Park when the Victoria fifteen will meet the team from the James Bay Athletic Association.

Kid Merryfield, who is to box Jimmy Brand tomorrow in the A.O.U.W. Hall, is quite an out-and-out hero. He has done a great deal of fighting and has managed to win against almost every man he has met. Some of these have been much heavier than himself, some being at least fifty pounds heavier.

Only two schooners, at the outside, will be sent direct from Victoria to the Schering Sea this season by the Victoria Sealing Company, Capt. Grant, answering a question from a Times reporter to-day, said that the company did not feel justified in sending more than two schooners, and there was a possibility that only one might be sent.

MORE PLAYS FOR FINALS

"Sanctuary," by A. M. D. Fairbairn, and "A Cup of Tea" Chosen at Festival

By M. A.

A. M. D. Fairbairn's "Sanctuary," with Mr. Fairbairn himself as Brother Hoses and Deane Wilson as his lover, earned the decision of the judges at yesterday evening's festival at the B.C. Drama Festival at the Crystal Garden Theatre, and will appear in the finals Saturday evening.

At the Wednesday matinee, the B.C. Arts presentation of "A Cup of Tea" well deserved to be chosen for the finals. The players were Mary Martin, Margery Benson, Ted Kirby and Neil Buchanan.

Mr. Fairbairn's play is set in a somewhat philosophic key and there is a dash of attitudes as represented by the actor who married a rich cripple in the hope he would soon die and enable her to share his wealth with the man whose life she really wanted to be, and by the erstwhile lover who seeks sanctuary in holy orders after the marriage to the cripple.

The tone is subdued, the mechanics of the action almost extraneous. Everything depends on the slow unfolding of two outlooks on life, the spiritual and systematized one of the monk and the less conscious one of the girl who had not yet surmounted the flesh and earthy things. Miss Wilson gave a fine performance. She is decidedly becoming a leading figure among the younger actors and actresses of Victoria. Mr. Fairbairn's interpretation rang true.

"A Cup of Tea," the afternoon selection of the judges, was of a quite different stamp. This diversity is a good thing as far as the attractiveness of the final night's programme is concerned. A cup of tea, served by the highly practical Jane (Miss Martin), is the touchstone which helps to turn more violent tendencies into safe social virtue. The characterization here seemed superior and a good many of the passages were delightful. Henry Worthington programme included four plays in addition to "Sanctuary," and it is possible the judges' second choice was "Campbell of Kilmorie," the work of the North Saanich Little Theatre Association. Here the Scotch voices and the costumes were fine, and the story held the attention, really a rather unusual thing in short festival plays. One usually finds oneself merely studying the actors and not much more than slightly interested in the fate of the characters. In fact, the majority of the characters do not seem to have fates, but just positions.

OTHER PLAYS

Other evening plays included Elizabeth Gale's "Boosting Bridge," put on by the Jean Drama Guild, with Ellen Cannon, Clara Klubinski, Margaret O'Neill, Kathleen Nesbit, Mary Hughes and Doris Allen as the cast, and Mrs. Lenora Thompson, as director. Lewis Wharton's "Time, the Great Humourist," staged by the Victoria Little Theatre Association under the direction of Vaughan Barker and acted by Alma Siles, Peter Macalium, Elsie Finlayson, R. B. Westmacott and Lewis Wharton, and Edith Scott-Burritt's "The Little Night," with the following New Thought Temple Dramatic Club members as the cast: Thomas Catterall, Daisy Borrowman, Jack Harvey and Edith Pearson.

Other afternoon plays were "When the Whirlwind Blows," by the Victoria Little Theatre Association (Lucy Wharton, Muriel Thompson and Muriel Davison; Nellie Scottcroft, director); Major L. Bullock-Webster's "The Handful," by the Beaux Arts (Betty O'Brien and Jean Findlay, Helen Harris, director); and "Lake Dore," by the Triad Players (Audrey Nixon, Richard Hughes and Jack Stokes, Mrs. G. Nixon, director).

Guests at the evening performance were His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Fordham Johnson, Senator and Mrs. G. H. Barnard and Major Selten Humphreys.

To-night's programme, which commences at 8 o'clock, includes "The Dance Below" (Victoria Little Theatre Association); "Wunder Blumery" (The Fairfield Players); "The Trouseaux" (New Thought Temple Dramatic Club); and "The Chinese Fragment," adapted by Ethel Reese Burns (Forbes-Robinson Players).

MOTHER'S DAY PROGRAMME

To the Editor:—The committee for Mother's Day programme, to be given May 14, Beacon Hill, invite superintendents of Sunday schools, ministers and all public school leaders to co-operate with us as far as possible when the general order of service will be published. We believe it would be a beautiful tribute to mother to meet amidst flowers, birds and children, and enjoy a simple service music, song and story. It is all so simple and so beautiful. We have not a programme but our comrades, and have a happy hour together. Any person who wishes to contribute, however small in memory of mother, kindly send to the papers, care of Mother's Day Co. Any surplus will be given to the children's fund at the Solomons.

UNWISE HINTS

To the Editor:—Since reading your article of Wednesday on "Nuisance Taxes" I have been unconsciously disturbed and doubtless there are many others similarly affected. I am amazed and alarmed by your temerity, and I fear that you may live to repent your indiscretion. This incautious act of putting ill into the heads of the legislators of this province is fraught with danger and discomfort to thousands of people who have done you no harm and wish you none. The legislative innocence that imposes a tax on a man's soup is liable to take your proposals seriously, get out of hand and commit any act of fiscal absurdity. To say the least it was unwise to enlarge on the tremendous possibilities inherent in this new economic stunt and, really, greater care is called for. What, for example, is to hinder these solons from even laying an impost on the wearing of suspenders, sometimes called galluses, although you did not mention this important accessory in the sartorial makeup?

I trust, dear Mr. Editor, that you will accept, this timely hint in the spirit intended and heed your versatile and incisive pen in order.

T. D. NIVEN, 681 Dunedin Street, May 4, 1933.

FASCISM IN B.C.

To the Editor:—A news item in the local press to the effect that A. H. Evans had been met at the train in Princeton and told to return to Vancouver, with a ticket handed to him, is not in accord with the facts. In view of the fact that Mr. Evans is a candidate for the Provincial Assembly in the next election, a true recital of the case would be in the interests not only of Evans, but the whole public. A posse of men (alleged K.K.K. five cam full) took Evans from a private house in Princeton and drove him to Merritt, where at the point of pistols he was forced to entrain for Vancouver, and told that if he ever returned he would be shot on sight.

We venture to assert that this is rather high-handed, and we are at a loss to understand why the government has not taken steps to have these malefactors brought to justice. Evans is under $10,000 bail awaiting trial in June and charged under section 98 of the Criminal Code. His activities in Princeton during the strike of the miners in endeavoring to organize them in the intolerable conditions prevailing there is the basis of this charge, which has been laid at the instigation of the coal operators. Now the coal operators and coal operators are endeavoring to put over another 10 per cent cut in the already miserable wages of the miners, and the miners will resist. For Mr. Evans was there to help the miners at their request, which constitutes no breach of the law. The unlawful way in which Evans was turned back at Princeton is evidence of the weakness of the forces of law and order, who thus either admit their helplessness or actual connivance in the kidnapping.

This is Fascism pure and simple, a state of affairs that cannot be tolerated in Canada, if we are to have that freedom of the individual and of speech and assembly guaranteed by our constitution. Are the people of British Columbia and Canada in general anxious to have the barbarous and brutal conditions prevailing in Germany under Hitlerism duplicated here? If so, they have only to continue in their apathetic tolerance of the flaunting of laws by one section of the community, and soon we will have Hitlerism, storm troops, gray shirts and all the paraphernalia and psychology that makes for the repetition of events that led up to the Fascist dictatorship in Italy and Germany.

A. H. Evans is a member of the Brotherhood of Carpenters' local in Vancouver. EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, CANADIAN LABOR LEAGUE, VICTORIA.

Hans Kroeger, Secretary.

MR. GUEBALLA'S LECTURE

To the Editor:—Why should Philip Gueballa have married a clever talk, done in a brilliant Oxford dialectical style, by slurring remarks on United States people and their customary customs to which he objected apparently because they were not the same as his? If a United States lecturer came here and similarly slurred English ways, because they were not his ways, how it would be resented!

To say the least, it was personal bad taste on Mr. Gueballa's part. For he had just finished a four months' lecture trip in United States, for which his American audiences more or less filled his pockets. He may not have been accorded much attention and cash in United States as he thought he merited, but he was at least generously enough received there to keep going for four months.

More than that, the American reading public paid him well for his recent book, "Wellington," making it a best seller. It was a most excellent, higher-priced class. It was also chosen as a book club by one of the New York book clubs and distributed nationally in volume by that organization. He has also collected generously for his magazine writings published on this side of the Atlantic.

Mr. Gueballa said he was glad to be again seen by persons who spoke the same language whom he could understand and be understood by—apparently assuming that all Canadians, including all Victorians, use his Oxford accent. In that he is due for a rude awakening before he completes this—his first trip to Canada. In any case, he was able to survive the shock of being paid in dollars instead of sterling.

Why should an American be ridiculed as "lingering a railroad time" a "track" as Mr. Gueballa prefers to have his application of terms vary even in parts of England?

Having been in Canada for the first time only a half dozen hours when he spoke, he is not time to learn that Canadians also call it a railway time and advertise it as such. He may learn more of our ways before he gets on his trip east by one of our main lines.

The National Council of Education will have to extend its activities to include the education of visiting lecturers of good taste, even although they are Oxford cultured.

Society Shows Membership of 472 and Balances in Bank For Year

Officers For Coming Year to Be Chosen at May 17 Meeting; Programme Given

Membership of the Victoria Musical Arts Society now totals 472. It has a balance in the bank of $280, a small balance in its scholarship fund and total receipts for the year were $2,279.40.

These facts were given at the annual meeting of the members of the society at the Shrine Auditorium yesterday evening in the reports of Mrs. W. A. Jamieson, president Mrs. W. E. Godson, secretary, and Mrs. Joseph Rose, treasurer.

At the next concert meeting on Wednesday, May 17, the officers for the coming year will be chosen from the executive, which is as follows: Mrs. W. A. Jamieson, Mrs. Joseph Rose, Mrs. W. B. McKicking, Mrs. C. E. McNeill, Mrs. Marian McGovern, Dr. J. E. Watson, Edward Parsons, Mrs. Godson, Mrs. Archie Wills, Mrs. Tadmor, Mrs. Herbert Pandray, Miss Marie North, Mrs. Charles French, Miss Violet Wilson, and Mrs. H. Campbell.

The last five were elected to the executive for a three-year term.

A presentation was made to President Mrs. Jamieson of a standard basket filled with pink antirrhinums, tulips and roses, and tied with tulle. The presentation was made on behalf of the society by Mrs. J. O. Cameron. To Mrs. Cameron, as the honorary president, a special paragraph was devoted in the presidential report to expressing appreciation to her for her generous hospitality to all branches of the society in throwing her home open on numerous occasions for various activities.

ADVANCING MUSIC

"The principal object of our society is the advancement of music and the allied arts," Mrs. Jamieson said in her review of the year's activities. "Making of money was not, with the exception of the scholarship fund, one of the direct objects of the society. In the programmes offered during the year the musical arts had covered a varied field, including solo and ensemble singing, violin, piano, and piano solo chamber music, symphony drama, travelogue folk dancing and handicrafts."

"In times of depression, more than at any other time, music becomes a real necessity in the lives of the people, and it has been the aim of your executive to fill that need as far as possible."

A review of the junior, intermediate and juvenile branch activities was contained in the report.

On the musical programme yesterday evening, Miss Violet Wilson sang "Little Silver Ring" and "Schumann's 'Widmung'." She was accompanied by Miss Eileen Dunbar, who played Chopin's "Ballade in E Flat" and the "Revolutionary Etude." Miss Eileen Dunbar, accompanied by Mrs. C. E. McNeill, sang Parry's "A Lover's Garland" in the Elizabethan style, and two songs of Ireland, "If There Were Dreams to Sell" and "Sea Fever."

Your Baby
and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

The baby who has rickets is the one who develops bowlegs. Bowlegs are not an evidence of early walking, nor of the fact that some member of the family has bowlegs, but only an evidence of baby's own faulty diet.

Baby's diet should provide him with sufficient minerals to supply his bones and teeth. Cod liver oil given during the cold sunless winter months makes it possible for the body to utilize these minerals to the best advantage. When the diet is faulty and cod liver oil is conscientiously lacking, the baby develops rickets, a nutritional disease evidenced by soft bones and crumpled teeth.

Bones cannot grow straight and strong without an adequate deposit of minerals. Teeth cannot develop or appear white and clear and pearly unless they too, receive their share of minerals. We recognize that baby is not receiving sufficient minerals when the teeth are materially delayed in appearing and the baby's legs bow out of in.

CURATIVE STEPS

The small baby's legs may be slightly bowed when he first begins to walk, but when this condition appears in the spring, there are four or more long months in which the curative effect of the sunlight may be utilized to correct the deformity. Mothers of bowlegged children have discovered that by giving intelligent attention to the diet and exposing the child to the rays of the sun the condition is quickly outgrown. The bones harden in this mishapen state only when the diet is allowed to remain faulty and the child is given neither cod liver oil nor subjected to sufficient sunlight to promote the deposit of minerals in the bones and teeth.

From now on, we shall have sunshine in abundance so that cod liver oil may be dispensed with beginning in June. But the diet must be adequate. Milk must be called upon to supply sufficient calcium, and green vegetables, fruits, and whole grain cereals must furnish the other essential minerals before even sunlight can encourage the body to thoroughly benefit from them. If your baby shows a tendency toward rickets, read a very interesting report of the recent activities of the chapter, a discussion was held regarding Empire study, and it was decided to leave this matter over until summer holidays, when Mrs. Bolt would arrange for a speaker to address a meeting early in the fall. It was decided to invite Mrs. Curtis Sampson to represent the Robert Burns McKicking Chapter, I.O.D.E., at the annual meeting of National Chapter, I.O.D.E., which is to be held at Edmonton, Alta., May 28.

Final plans were made regarding the anniversary tea to be held in the social rooms of the Y.W.C.A. on Saturday afternoon, May 6, from 3 to 6. Miss Elsie Jenkins announced that the sale of tickets had commenced for the excursion which is being sponsored by this chapter on May 24. The 88. Princess Louise has been chartered and will leave for Seattle at 8:30 a.m., returning at 6 p.m., with a five-hour stopover in the mainland city. A popular orchestra has been engaged and luncheon and dinner will be served on the boat.

As the last social party for the blind war-veterans, it was decided to hold another party for the blind friends of the chapter early in June. Miss Elsie Jenkins will again act as general convener, with Miss Connie Chow arranging the refreshments. The members were reminded of the Empire luncheon on May 23, and many of the members promised to attend.

After the meeting adjourned, Miss A. B. Cooke, municipal educational secretary, gave a most interesting address on the subject of educational work as a financial report. Advances were made for an outing to be held under the auspices of the association on Labor Day. Discussion took place regarding the summer training camp to be held during the summer at Gordon Head.

Frank Paulding, secretary of the Y.M.C.A., gave an address on "Youth at the Crossroads." The chairman moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Paulding on behalf of the association.

A short service was held under the leadership of Mr. James and refreshments were served bringing an enjoyable evening to a close.

CELEBRITIES IN THEIR BABYHOOD

New York Revels in Early Portraits of Members of "400"

New York, May 4 (Associated Press).—It's the queerest baby show Manhattan ever saw.

The entrants are all members of the "400," the Vanderbilts, the Goulds, the Roosevelts and such folk. Instead of live babies, the exhibits are oil paintings, statues and sketches.

Then many of the "babies" are now famous men and women. And the contestants not only had to pay to enter the pictures or statues, but they now are paying to go in and look at them themselves.

John Barrymore as a solemn, velvet-collared youngster; Katharine Cornell as a prim little girl holding her father's hand; Mrs. A. G. Vanderbilt in a big picture hat of the 1918 mode with her children; President Roosevelt's two grandchildren—those are some of the exhibits.

The proceeds are going to charity. The exhibits are being judged for "health," character, humor and promise.

"You can tell as much about a baby by looking at a photograph as inspecting the real thing, anyway," one of the gallery attendants explained.

Chapter Hears of Education Work Done by I.O.D.E.

UNLUCKY DIAMOND OFFERED FOR SALE AGAIN

Although Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean, Washington society matron, hopes to raise $250,000 by the sale of her famous Hope diamond, it is probable that a very great many people would refuse to accept the ill-starred gem were it offered to them for the sum of a thin dime. The great diamond has an evil reputation which has followed it down the years since the time it was brought out of Central Asia in the seventeenth century up to the present. It is alleged the gem first came into prominence when Louis XIV of France gave it to his wife as a bribe, and the curse is supposed to have asserted itself and France was forced to sign the humiliating Treaty of Paris that deprived her of India and Canada. Lost for two centuries, the stone reappeared in England when Lord Francis Hope presented it to his wife, May Yahe, for a wedding present. Lord Hope later divorced his wife and the diamond was blamed. He sold it to Habib Bay, an Oriental nobleman, who was drowned, and the stone became the property of Prince Kantivskoi, who was assassinated. Edward McLean, the well-known United States publisher, bought the diamond in 1910 for the wife from whom he is now estranged, and since that time ill-luck seems to have dogged the footsteps of the McLean family.

Although Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean, Washington society matron, hopes

"The Tangle"

A Novel by
H. LAWRENCE PHILLIPS
Author of "Cap'n Benny" and "A Friendless Millionaire"

A low groan from the Colonel and a muttered exclamation from his son were sufficient reply, though through set teeth the latter answered—
"I refuse to reply yes or no."
"Thank you, I fancy that your reply has been sufficient," said the Colonel, "and I am sure that you will not mind my asking you to be a little more explicit. Now I may give you a piece of further information which may ease your mind and unlock your lips. Mrs. Estcourt did not enter the house until after the shots were fired, and so is entirely cleared of any complicity in the murder."
"What are you telling us, man? Is this true? How do you know it? Did you hear, sir?" burst Tom in an excited torrent of words. Both he and his father were standing now and gazing eagerly at their visitors with eyes aflame with hope. Suddenly a changed expression came into the younger man's face as a dreadful suspicion took hold of him. He turned to Gray.
"Your friend hasn't made this up, has he, to get something out of me? I'll kill him if he has," he exclaimed wildly.
"Don't lose your head, my dear boy; it is perfectly true, and I should have told you at the outset, and you would not have needed to tell all those—well, call them fibs, that you did."
"Thank God! thank God!" murmured the Colonel. The reaction from the tension was too much for him; he sank exhausted into his chair, and to his son's great alarm went off into a dead faint.
The three men busied themselves in an endeavor to revive him, and after a while were successful. He looked terribly shaken and ill when he came over, and they feared to enter upon further discussion in his presence, and urged him to go to his room and leave them to their explanations. To this he would not listen.
"I have never in my life made such an ass of myself," he apologized. "I am growing old, rapidly, I fear. But if you know what a hell of an anxiety I have been living in for the last few days, and the untold relief of Mr. Manson's words, you would excuse my lapse. No, no, carry on; the worst is over, and the best to come in this horrible affair. I can stand anything if my dear wife is beyond suspicion. It was better to endure anything than cause her suffering, and my dear lad here—he put his hand affectionately upon his son's arm—"agreed with me, even to the extent of telling lies to you, padre."
"I'll tell you again in the same cause, sir," asserted the son stoutly.
"I am afraid we are wasting time; there is much to discuss and explain, and I am sure that both the Vicar and Mr. Manson, as busy men, want to get on. May I ask them to tell me what they know of Mrs. Estcourt's connection with this affair? For reasons which I will explain later we are quite in the dark."
At the Colonel's words Manson's eyebrows went up in trifling surprise, but he kept silent, and allowed Gray to speak.
The Vicar began his story, commencing with his adventures in the house and the discovery of the handkerchief. At this point of his narrative, father and son exchanged glances.
"That was your fault, dad," said Tom, smiling.
"I am afraid it was. I am a poor criminal, Tom. But get on, padre, and tell me how it was, with such deadly evidence, you became assured of my wife's innocence; for as yet we are completely ignorant of the way in which she is cleared, and our anxieties on her account futile."
"I have been sharing your anxieties, and have had added to them my own little perplexities," said Gray, smiling a little wryly, "but we have to thank Miss Montali for the relief we feel."
"Miss Montali! how does she—? I remember we said 'Good night' to her just before we got to the 'Linden'—but how does she—?"
"It all fits in with what she told me. She and your wife were talking together just outside the house when they heard the sound of two shots, and thought that they must have been fired by the gamekeeper in the coppice. She left your wife at that moment to go to the post office, and Mrs. Estcourt must have entered the house a few moments after the murder, so the alibi is complete, and our fears on that point are at an end."
"Can you ask the question now? What does she herself say about it? Did she see anyone?"
Manson eagerly listened for the answer to the Vicar's question, but when it came it was disappointing.
"She hasn't said anything owing to her condition, and I fear won't be able to help. To explain it all let me tell you my story, and then you can ask what you will."

CHAPTER XVI

To supply the clue to our mysterious behavior I must go back some years—to the time, in fact, when I was ing with her back to us, with a pistol in her hand, was my wife!

"Mary, what in God's name have you done?" I cried.
"At the sound of my voice she turned, and I saw the same non-seeing look—I may call it such—in her eyes that I had seen before.
"Gracious heavens!" I exclaimed to Tom, "she has had another of these attacks, and shot two women. What are we to do?"
"Tom from this point took command. I was too spent to act or think, indeed I have only a hazy recollection of the next few months. I went up to my dear wife and took the weapon without any resistance from her hand; I saw that it was covered with blood. A handkerchief lay on the floor—she must have dropped it there—and I picked it up and wiped her soiled hand with it, throwing it aside when I had finished. She uttered no word, and made no statement.
"Tom had been stooping over the bodies examining them.
"They are both dead, sir," he said softly.

MADAME SECRETARY'S TRICORN!

"Only Hat in the Cabinet" Stirs Warm Debate

Men's hats, of course, always are tabled when Madame Secretary takes the floor... But Miss Perkins's tricorn? Never!

Washington, May 4.—A small black hat of the type known as a tricorn, with a neat white feather in it, is the crown glory of the uniform of the day of the Secretary of Labor.

So far, in public in Washington, Miss Frances Perkins has not been seen without it. She wears it at her desk at the office. She wears it when appearing before Congressional committees. She wears it at cabinet meetings. Inquiries were in order. How come Miss Perkins's secretary, a lieutenant of New York days, answered:

"Miss Perkins has always worn a hat at work. She has simply grown accustomed to doing so. In New York she was in and out of the office so much that it hardly seemed worth while to take it off."

LEADS DIGNITY, SAYS SECRETARY

"Also, it adds a certain dignity, a certain formality to one's appearance when receiving delegations or holding interviews."

"As for her cabinet and committee appearance—it is certainly natural to do so in such cases. Any woman at any committee meeting is more than likely to keep her hat on."

About Miss Perkins's hat, the secretary further explained that there were a number of them, mostly of the same tricorn type.

And lastly, it was learned that Miss Perkins has nice hair. It is brown, abundant, and with an excellent natural wave.

CONGRESSWOMEN DISAGREE

At the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue, however, in the Capitol, there was virtually unanimous disagreement upon to consider such a frivolous matter. "It's a matter of taste," she said.

Mrs. Caraway, only woman Senator in this Congress, has brown hair, tinged with grey. She parts it in the middle and it ripples down across her head in nice curves.

"MEN DON'T: WHY SHOULD I?"

"I feel more comfortable without a hat," she said. "And anyhow, why should I assume a privilege which male senators don't have? They are forbidden to wear hats when the Senate is in session. Why should I?"

Sister MARY'S KITCHEN

HELPFUL HINTS FOR LAUNDERING TABLE LINENS

By SISTER MARY

Table linens and damasks seem more beautiful this year than ever before and since the life-long beauty of all linens is dependent on its care, perhaps a few suggestions regarding the laundering of linen will be helpful.

Correct methods of washing and ironing are vastly important. Careless handling and harsh soap solutions are often responsible for lack-luster linens. Strong alkali soaps and bleaching mixtures destroy and bleach linens, destroy the natural lustre of linen and the heavy satin texture of damask.

Choose a pure mild soap and wash linens in heavy suds, squeezing the sudsy water through the fabric rather than rubbing. Few laundresses realize that rubbing roughens the fine fibre and shortens the life of all linens. Linen naturally washes easily since it does not hold the dirt in the obstinate fashion characteristic of cotton.

BE CAREFUL WITH BLEACH

Use very little bluing in the last rinse water for linens. Linen absorbs bluing much more readily than do cotton fabrics. Be sure all linens are thoroughly rinsed before putting them in the bluing water.

Never starch linen. This applies to all household linens—table, bed linen and towels. Linen possesses a natural sheen and body that does not require the addition of starch.

The final finished beauty of damask lies in the care with which it is ironed.

"What did you say, Wiggy?" asked Mrs. Longears as her husband leaned close to whisper something to her.

"I said," whispered Uncle Wiggily, "that the ice cream is gone!"

"Oh, Wiggy!" laughed his wife, acquiring about it can't hear a word you say. When you whisper you tickle my ear and it makes me laugh. Now tell me again!"

"THE ICE CREAM IS GONE!"

Everyone at the May party heard him, but Mrs. Longears did not seem to understand.

"How can the ice cream be gone when we haven't eaten any of it yet, Wiggy?" she asked. "Don't be silly and playing jokes. Bring me the freezer of ice cream and Nurse Jane, the Lady Mouse Teacher and I will dish it out to the children. They are waiting for it."

"They will have a long wait," said Uncle Wiggily gloomily. "I tell you now, when the ice cream is gone, it's gone. I didn't even open the freezer. I left it, packed with ice, in the hollow stump and now it's gone. I mean the ice cream is gone!" he said, quickly.

Nurse Jane looked at Mrs. Longears and Mrs. Longears looked at the Lady Mouse Teacher from the Hollow Stump School and the Lady Mouse looked at Uncle Wiggily. Then all three boys and girls looked at each other and brushed the crumbs of chocolate cake off their lips. They also drained the last drops of lemonade from their cups.

"Oh," exclaimed Baby Bunty in a faint voice. "This is terrible! The ice cream gone before we had any! Oh! Oh! Oh!"

COMMONS DEALS WITH EXTENSION OF SALES TAX LIST

Liberals Criticize Government's Course in Removing Number of Foodstuffs From Exemption Classification; Clauses Passed

Ottawa, May 4.—The Commons took another bite at the Rhodes budget yesterday, passing the sales tax provisions after a comparatively mild discussion. The budget measures maintain the sales tax at the 6 per cent level and remove from the exemption list a score or more commodities.

Most of the criticism yesterday was directed against the Finance Minister for removing from the exemption list a long line of foodstuffs, including flour, molasses, oatmeal, sage and tapioca. Liberals also complained of the new provision which exempts cakes and other delicatessen products. It was all a question of the Dominion being forced to raise revenue, replied Finance Minister E. N. Rhodes. There were obvious reasons why certain foods should not be taxed, but always in the immediate background was the hard-pressed treasury, which must be replenished. The 6 per cent tax would yield $18,000,000 alone on the goods removed from the exemption list, he said.

Complaint against placing so many food commodities on the taxable list was voiced by Hon. Charles Stewart, Liberal, West Edmonton. Such staple articles as flour, oatmeal, rolled oats, corn meal, sage and tapioca were now subject to the tax. Fuel oil was also subject to the tax, and that article was taxed by provincial governments. As to the list of taxable commodities brought up by Mr. Stewart, said Mr. Rhodes, most of them had been taxed up to and including the year 1926. Conditions now, from the point of view of raising revenue, were worse than in 1926.

GO INTO BANKRUPTCY

A. Anderson, Conservative, Toronto, made a plea on behalf of Toronto bakers for a change in the imposition of the sales tax on pies and cakes. Smaller bakers were being forced into bankruptcy right and left. Three or four deputations had visited him on the subject of cakes and pies, said Mr. Rhodes. When the bakers' interests suggested the tax be imposed on the taxable ingredients, it was merely "begging the question." The revenue resulting from such a move would be but a trivial proportion of that collected on the finished product. Bakers were being given "a reasonable attitude" in paying the tax. The difficulty with the small bakers was not the sales tax but the competition of the chain stores, he said.

Without giving any undertaking, Mr. Rhodes said he would consider the matter further. From a viewpoint of revenue, $1,350,000 a year was involved.

PRICE LEVEL

G. G. Coote, U.F.A., Macleod, declared he was opposed to the sugar tax and increases in regard to the sales tax. The minister might give more time to the question of raising price levels. If price levels were raised 25 per cent, said Mr. Coote, the budget would be balanced without the imposition of new taxes. He thought perhaps there was not a realization of what it meant to consumers to pay the two-cent-a-pound tax on sugar.

Mr. Rhodes replied that if the U.F.A. member suggested he could accomplish more by raising price levels, he thanked the member for the implied compliment. If he could accomplish the objective suggested by Mr. Coote he would be worthy of a place in history along with Atlas. He was in the closest touch with the common people, knew conditions in their homes and, as he held every human sympathy, it was distasteful to him to have to impose the sugar tax.

The House committee then quickly passed the resolutions in the sales and excise tax group, and was proceeding with the income tax resolutions when adjournment was taken.

NAZIS CONTROL INDUSTRIES NOW

Policies of Business in Germany Dictated by Hitlerites

Berlin, May 4.—Nazi control of the Federation of German Industries became complete yesterday after a final conference of Baron Gustav Krupp von Bohlen, head of the Krupp works at Essen, with Chancellor Adolf Hitler. The baron, early in March, was authorized to negotiate with the Chancellor and his cabinet in reorganization of the federation, aimed at adoption of an industrial policy founded on the views of the government, meaning Nazi control of the vital industries.

A federation communiqué said the baron would remain as president of the federation, with Otto Wagener, Hitler's economic adviser, and Alfred Moellath, Reichstag member and an economist, acting as Reich commissars. Apparently hastened by Nazi action yesterday in taking over the free trade unions and the "Gewerkschaftsbund der Angestellten" (office workers' organization), surrendered yesterday to the Nazi regime. The move affects roughly 3,000,000 members.

CLOSED BY POLICE

Bavarian police yesterday closed restaurants and Tietz stores at Osnabrunden and the Woolworth stores at Bamberg, allegedly because food and drinks sold were "unfit for human consumption."

The police action at Bamberg was accompanied by trouble, the officers being obliged to use force in ejecting some customers. Several customers were injured and a number arrested.

First recruits for the compulsory labor army, as announced by the Chancellor, will comprise youths who have

BANK INQUIRY SOON TO START

Announcement at Ottawa of Personnel of Commission Is Awaited

Ottawa, May 4.—Announcement is expected shortly of the personnel of the royal commission which will investigate and report on Canada's banking facilities in general, and particularly on the advisability of the establishment of a central bank.

Premier Bennett has not yet made any definite announcement as to when the commission may be expected to get down to work, but it is understood the personnel awaits only completion before the announcement is made.

A report that Sir Arthur Salter, noted British economist, would head the commission, has gained considerable circulation here, but it is reported in reliable quarters that no decision has been reached as to the chairman.

It is known the Prime Minister's desire would be to get a man of the calibre of Lord Macmillan, who headed a similar commission in Great Britain, and if possible to secure Lord Macmillan himself.

REVISION POSTPONEMENT

Ottawa, May 4.—The bill which authorizes postponement of the decennial revision of the Bank Act received second reading in the Senate yesterday. Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, government party leader in the Upper House, declared the purpose of the postponement was to enable the revision to be in conformity with suggestions of the World Economic Conference.

EXPORT FUND IS LAUNCHED

Dominion Stabilization Measure For Farmers About to Be Put Into Operation

Ottawa, May 4.—Steps are being taken, it is understood, possibly before the end of this week, to bring into operation the stabilization fund for certain agricultural products announced in the budget brought down by Finance Minister Rhodes on March 21 last.

The fund will be operated by officials of the government without the necessity of engaging any new staff. It is believed, and will likely be under the jurisdiction of the Minister of Finance, or possibly under a joint committee representative of both the Finance and Agriculture Departments. By use of this fund the government aims to "peg" the pound sterling at $4.60 and make up to the Canadian exporters of animals, game, poultry, fresh fish, canned fish, tobacco, cheese, milk products, canned fruit and vegetables, maple products, eggs and honey the difference between the figure and the actual value of the pound.

DARROW AIDS IOWA FARMERS

Aged Chicago Lawyer to Assist Defence of Those Who Mobbed Judge

Chicago, May 4.—Clarence Darrow was busy to-day "studying several points" which he is to emphasize in defending nearly 100 Iowa farmers charged with the mobbing and abduction of an elderly judge in an attempt to halt farm mortgage foreclosures.

The noted lawyer, now seventy-six years old, decided to enter the case after he had said he understood that P. F. Paville, former chief justice of the Iowa Supreme Court, and Attorney William Holly, his colleague in other recent trials, would assist him.

"I can take no strenuous part," Mr. Darrow said, "because of my health and age. Probably I will be unable to be present during all of the trial, as it apparently is going to be a long one."

EYEWITNESSES TESTIFY

Le Mars, Ia., May 4.—One of the three eyewitnesses to the abduction and threatened hanging of District Judge C. C. Bradley told a military court here yesterday he had heard some of the 150 to 200 men who dragged the judge from his courtroom about "Get a rope. Let's hang him."

At the same time, the witness testified, others in the mob tossed a rope over a telegraph pole and fastened it around the judge's neck.

The three men told their story as the military court began sifting evidence against more than 100 farmers arrested in connection with last week's riots. Names of the witnesses were withheld because of fear that friends of the prisoners might attempt reprisals.

PLAN SURTAX ON IMPORTS

French Will Levy 15 Per Cent on Goods From U.S. If Dollar Reaches 20 Francs

Paris, May 4.—The Ministry of Finance is prepared to impose shortly a 15 per cent surtax on goods from the United States.

Any move to impose such a surtax for signing, to be issued when the United States dollar approaches 20 francs, which officials expect.

This surtax already is effective on British and Japanese goods because of depreciated exchange.

It cannot be increased without parliamentary authority, which Premier Daladier is reported contemplating.

RETURNING HOME

United States residents in France and tourists, who already have lost a large part of their incomes, have been badly hit by the 15 per cent fall in the dollar. Many of them, unable

WOMEN WHO PLAY FAIR...

"Now it's our turn to play fair with them!"

The argument was on. Gladys was all for putting off payment of her bills. But Mary stood staunch and firm. For good reasons, evidently. . . .

"Remember when Bill's salary was cut?" she said. "We had all we could do to keep house and home together. . . . and believe me, it was only credit that pulled us through!"

"Yes, but Mary," protested the other, "What's the rush? They know they'll get it some time, and money is just as good a few months later as the month it's due. Besides, my creditors have lots more money than I have — they don't need my measly twenty dollars a month!"

Mary's eyes shot fire. "That's the mistaken idea some women have. We don't seem to realize that our creditors are just ordinary people with lots of bills to pay, too — and they can't pay until we do!"

"Just think, Gladys, they give us the goods and we keep the money that belongs to them. Why, they actually lend us money! Now it's our turn to play fair with them. Of course, they know we're honest and will pay some time — but that doesn't help them meet their bills when due."

"Put yourself in their place. How would you feel if the company forgot John's salary for three months? You'd get it some time — but you'd get awfully hungry in three months." By this time Gladys was wilted and Mary swept on to victory.

"What's more, Gladys, it's a mean thing to say, but people always seem to sense when a person doesn't pay her bills and they think less of her. Of course, when there's real cause for it — like sickness or lack of work — why, everybody understands and sympathizes. But there's no excuse for forgetting or carelessly letting bills slide."

Suddenly she blushed self-consciously. Gladys smilingly took the words of apology out of her mouth and frankly said, "I only wish someone had explained it to me before. It must be a wonderful feeling of relief to pay the bills when they're due and forget them for the month!"

It is a wonderful feeling. And it's really surprisingly easy to form the habit of paying promptly. You will relieve yourself of needless worry by paying your bills when due and by using credit freely with a contented mind.

B.C. TO INCREASE COAL SHIPMENTS

Ottawa, May 4.—A report issued yesterday evening by the Dominion Mines Branch describes tests made on Michel coal from the Crow's Nest Pass area, British Columbia, both at Ottawa and at the Winnipeg Electric Company's plant at Winnipeg. These tests show the 50,000 tons of imported coal used annually by that company can be entirely replaced with Michel coal under existing conditions. Expectations are the company will eventually draw all of its coal requirements from Canadian mines. Twenty-seven coals were tested in the experimental pulverized fuel boiler, twelve of which were from British Columbia, eleven from Alberta, and three from different lots of lignite from Onakawana in northern Ontario. All the coals were found satisfactory for use as pulverized fuel.

FERGUSON AT CONFERENCE

Dr. W. A. Riddell Also to Represent Canada in Wheat Discussion at Geneva

Canadian Press
Ottawa, May 4.—Hon. G. H. Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner in Great Britain, and Dr. W. A. Riddell, permanent Canadian representative to the League of Nations, are expected to be the representatives of the Dominion at the wheat conference in Geneva.

Geneva May 10. No official announcement has been made beyond the fact that Canadian officials now in Europe will represent this country at Geneva. With the encouraging jump in wheat prices lately the question of reduced acreage has retted somewhat to the background, but the fact that Canada is one of the few countries in the world that may be taken to stabilize the industry and put the price of a more satisfactory level. The conference, called by the economic committee of the League of Nations, will have representatives from Canada, the United States, Australia and Argentina. Should it be deemed desirable a larger conference including representatives from the consuming countries, will be called immediately after the May 10 discussions. An electric boiler plant of large capacity has come into use recently in connection with a newspaper power industry at Thorold, Ontario.

FAMED WIT IS MOURNED

Wilson Mizner, Adventurer and Author, Who Was Through Klondyke, Dies

He Once Married Mrs. Yerkes, Second Richest Widow in the World

By PAUL HARRISON

New York, May 4.—Broadway loved Wilson Mizner, the playwright, adventurer, promoter, raconteur and author who died in Hollywood the other evening. Yet Broadway seems surprisingly cheerful about it, for in its own peculiar fashion the Main Stem is honoring the memory of a dear departed bon vivant and wit—honoring it with reminiscent chuckles. Besides, Mizner always was a jester with death. He mocked it when he was a prospector on icy trails, when he was a gambler in the red-hot house, when he was riding the rods of freight trains. He laughed at death in his writing and his wise-cracks. Once, just before being trundled off for a major operation, he discovered a data chart plastered to his chest. He put on a pencil and wrote thereon: "Keep in a cool place until opened."

So when Wilson Mizner died at fifty-six, having lived ten times that long by the measure of experience, he left word that there should be no prayers, no formal eulogies. For him the sweetest requiem would be the laughter of his friends.

IN KLONDIKE RUSH
He was only twenty when he followed the gold rush to Dawson, and there, in five years, he became a wild and daring figure—and a phenomenal breaker of bank. Returning to the states, he began writing stories, and sold them. But he was bedraggled and broke when he breezed into New York in 1903.

A friend loaned Mizner a suit of clothes and a razor, and that night took him to a party at the home of Mrs. Mary Adelaide Yerkes, then the second richest widow in the world. Three months later Mizner married her. In another three months, after he had spent something like a quarter of a million dollars, they were divorced. And then he turned to writing plays. "The Deep Purple" and "The Greyhound" done in collaboration with Paul Armstrong, were among his successes. For two years he and Armstrong also managed Stanley Ketchel, king of the middleweights.

One day Mizner was advised that Ketchel was dying. He replied: "Just start counting over him. He'll get up." "HELLO SUCKER!"

As a Broadwayite, Mizner was idolized throughout those colorful days. But his circle of intimates was small. He detested stage and sawing acquaintance, and it was his studied opinion that 99 out of 100 people were "suckers." In fact, his stock greeting for everyone was "Hello sucker."

In 1918, Mizner and an architect brother, the late Addison Mizner, began a flier in Florida real estate which sold $30,000,000 worth of lots and ended in bankruptcy. After that he took up scenario writing in Hollywood.

From there he once wrote Addison that he was becoming stone deaf. His brother wired: "What do you care? You've heard everything."

Last year Addison telegraphed from Florida that he was ill and not expected to live. There was little consolation in Wilson's reply. It said: "Please stop dying. I'm trying to write a comedy." Addison did not die for several months.

THEY ARE STILL TELLING
The favorite story of Manhattan's old-timers, however, concerns the bitter feud that developed between Mizner and his former partner, Armstrong. The latter was a dandy who loved to dash up and down Broadway in a roaring Stutz, nodding proudly to "the boys" along the way, but always ignoring his old friend.

Matt McGrath, who later became the famous Olympic hammer thrower, was the traffic cop at Forty-second Street in those days. Whether or not it was through collusion with Mizner, Matt never failed to change traffic when Armstrong came rumbling along. Armstrong would walk—and walk—and chafe and fume and grow red under the ankers of pedestrian acquaintances, who usually included Mizner. Not until other motorists began to complain would Matt allow the glowering Armstrong to drive on.

This continued for a couple of years. Then Armstrong died. A long cortege left Campbell's fine-staking parlor and turned down Broadway. McGrath did not see it coming, but just as the hearse reached Forty-second Street he threw up a hand and shrieked a white blast that stopped all Broadway traffic.

A howl of laughter made him look around. It came from Mizner, riding in the palhearse's car. "Hey, Matt!" he whooped, "that's Armstrong. Let him through this time—it's his last ride!"

MOTHER FIGHTS COURT ORDER

Boy in Pittsburgh Sent to Hospital on Instructions of Judge

Associated Press

Pittsburgh, May 4.—The family and the state clashed to-day over the upbringing of the young and Billy Leish was sent to a hospital over the protests of his hysterical mother. Acting on the petition of Humane Society officials, Judge Benjamin Lencher cited physicians' testimony that the child would die unless treated for tuberculosis of the spine, and ordered the boy to an institution. Mrs. Mary Leish, who removed Billy from a hospital some months ago, claiming she could treat him better than "those doctors," struggled with a deputy sheriff and screamed as the officer took the boy from her arms.

She refused to listen to the persuasion of the judge, saying: "All the doctors tell me that he will be a cripple for life. Why shouldn't he be at home, playing with his brother and sister? I took him from a hospital like a skeleton. He has gained weight, sleeps at night and plays around. He is much better."

LINDBERGH WILL TESTIFY

Los Angeles, May 4 (Associated Press).—Confirmation of a report that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh would testify at Washington in the ransom conspiracy trial of Gaston B. Means and Norman T. Whitaker, was given to-day by officials of the Transcontinental and Western Air Lines of which Col. Lindbergh is technical adviser.

STERILIZATION

of Social Problems
Says Minister

Ottawa, May 4.—Sterilization of the mentally unfit may become necessary if social problems are to be adequately solved, Hon. W. G. Martin, Minister of Public Welfare of Ontario, said yesterday evening in addressing the annual meeting of the Canadian Council on Child and Family Welfare here.

There was no question of real moment to-day which did not have a bearing on humanitarianism, and the Minister said that was one of the reasons which led to the establishment of the Department of Public Welfare in Ontario.

The Governor-General, accompanied by Lady Desborough, as well as Hon. Murray MacLaren, Minister of National Health, attending the meeting. The Governor-General paid tribute to the scope of the Council's activities and expressed the deep interest of himself and Lady Desborough in its work.

Women come under a most favorable way in the afternoon and evening. It is a happy day for hospitality. Luncheons should be exceedingly successful.

Romance may be prevalent after sundown, when dances, especially those most popular in college districts, may be unusually enjoyable for young girls.

Love affairs should be exceedingly successful under this direction of the stars, which awakens sentiment in the young and those not so young.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of extraordinary opportunity. Prosperity is forecast.

Children born on this day probably will be brilliant and strong in personality. Many subjects of this sign are deep thinkers.

Karl Marx, famous Socialist, was born on this day, 1818.

Scenes from the various operas produced by the Victoria Operatic Society during the last two seasons will be presented at the costume ball which the Society will entertain up the 1932-1933 season at the Shrine auditorium on Friday, May 12. TRAIN SAVED

BY SIX BOYS

Lads, Seeing Washout on Tracks, Warn Engineer In Time

Associated Press
Passaic, N.J., May 4.—A drama of orphans, a storm and an express train hurtling toward disaster had its sequel to-day when six boys modestly received congratulations on their quick action in saving a train.

The six parentless boys glued their faces to a window of the Passaic Home yesterday evening to watch an electric storm rage outside. Suddenly they observed the rain had washed away an embankment, leaving a section of railway track suspended flimsily over a seventy-foot drop.

"They knew an express train would roar over those rails shortly," Dashing out, they ran down the track, waving raincoats and screaming. The engineer saw them through the darkness. He stopped just in time to save the train, which carried 500 passengers.

The boys are: Jacob Merinick, John Murdock, Douglas Fleming, Rudolph Dorche, Frank Mazzola and Michael Mazzola.

FAY WRAY AT
THE CAPITOLHas Leading Role in "The Vampire Bat," Mystery
Drama Opening Here

Lionel Atwill and Fay Wray, co-stars of "Dr. X" and "The Vampire Bat," will be seen together again in the leading roles of another thriller, "The Vampire Bat," which is the feature attraction at the Capitol Theatre to-day. In this production Atwill will be seen in the role of Dr. von Niemann, a physician and scientist, and Miss Wray will be seen as his laboratory assistant.

In addition to these two stars, the cast of this majestic picture includes several other popular players, whose recorded in mystery or horror pictures. Dwight Frye names "Dracula," "Frankenstein," and "The Maltese Falcon" as his best pictures. Lionel Belmore, also, was featured in "Frankenstein." Robert Fraser seen earlier in "The Crimson Circle," scored his greatest success in "White Zombie." Harrison Chase and Maurice Braddell, who takes the role of the murderer, Maude Eburne made her screen debut in "The Vampire Bat."

Also in the same programme is Horatius Bosworth in the "Country Fair."

Football Story
At the Columbia

"The Last Goal" is the name of the feature picture which opened this afternoon at the Columbia Theatre for the remainder of the week. It is a thrilling and exciting picture, the great game of football and shows a number of big college teams in action. There are other scenes, too, and together they combine to make an entertaining story.

As an added attraction the management of the Columbia Theatre is offering to Victoria motion picture fans a picture entitled "Silver Dollar." Bebe Daniels, for many years one of the most popular of motion picture stars, has the leading role and gives a good account of herself.

EMPIRE THEATRE

The famous pelicans in St. James's Park are seen in "Men of Oxford," now showing at the Empire Theatre. This picture depicts Oxford University life and Maurice Braddell, who takes the part of an undergraduate who is sent down after writing a revolutionary article in one of the college magazines, seeks employment as a reporter on a London newspaper.

One of his first jobs as a young reporter is to go to St. James's Park in order to write up something amusing about the pelicans. As a matter of fact, numerous articles have appeared from time to time in the British press about these birds, and it is one of the favorite sub-editorial commissions to see reporters to send them to interview the birds.

DOMINION THEATRE

Nearly two hundred white Fox skins were used in costumes for a single scene of "42nd Street," the Warner Bros. dramatic epic of the theatre which is now at the Dominion Theatre.

The scene, a dance number from the musical "Pretty Lady," around the production of which the plot revolves, is one of the most beautiful and striking of any yet brought to the Dominion Theatre. Thirty-two chorus girls and sixteen show girls, going through their intricate routine, were dressed solely in the pelts of the white fox, four to each, while on their heads tiny white hats with veils were each adorned with a fox head posed at the front.

"G.B.S." TO SHOW
AT THE CAPITOL

George Bernard Shaw, vitriolic commentator, human foibles, playwright and self-proclaimed communist, is the central figure in a Fox Movietone news reel made aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain while the Irish dramatist, touring the United States among the 350 world-cruise passengers.

Shaw, took more than ordinary interest in the making of the movie, during which he says a few words about the United States, the country he consistently vowed he would not visit. The bearded playwright and eminent figure of the literary world assumed the functions of director as well as actor, telling the cameramen and sound technicians how the movie ought to be made. The Irish movie experts made suggestions; Shaw ridiculed them. They thought he should walk in a certain way between two marked points on the Empress of Britain's sports deck. Shaw walked in a different way between two different points. The finished picture, in other words, is a Shaw effort in more ways than one.

The reel will be one of the added features at the Capitol Theatre this week commencing to-morrow and continuing until Saturday. It will show in Duncan at the Capitol Theatre, commencing May 15.

COMING TO EMPIRE

Another British picture, this time called "The Yearling," will open its Victoria engagement at the Empire Theatre to-morrow afternoon.

Rawlinson, is delightful, according to those who saw it in England. It was produced by the British and Dominions Pictures Incorporated, and was filmed in England.

English Comedy
At Playhouse

Jack Hulbert is now definitely placed in the front rank of the world's comedians. His subtle sense of clowning, his fascinating, rhythmic dancing and jolly method of "putting over" a musical number are artistic achievements essentially his own. When he is partnered by Gwilym Courtneidge (this wife) there are no limits to their exquisite foolery. They are perfectly matched in "Jack the Boy," the new Gainsborough comedy being shown at the Playhouse Theatre to-day.

Jack Hulbert as a tyro policeman gives a wonderful performance—excellent when mixed up with traffic or crooks, and fascinating when making love and crooning a romantic song. Gwilym Courtneidge is a pseudo-Scottish café, with her delicious Cockney-cum-Scottish accent.

SIDNEY MAN IS CHECKER KING

Special To The Times
 Sidney, May 4.—H. L. Ricketts of Sidney, after eight years in search of the British Columbia checker championship, won the laurels yesterday evening from H. E. Kennedy in an interesting game on the McIntyre checkerboard here.
 On five former occasions Ricketts has been trying to wrest the crown from the champion, but not until yesterday evening was he successful. He was playing for the North Saanich Service Club, Mr. Kennedy represented the Sidney Checker Club. It was a best out of five game series. In the previous games Kennedy had won two and Ricketts two. Ricketts was in excellent form. The McIntyre checkerboard is the invention of a Canadian, and is a new design of board in which each player uses fourteen checkers. There are no double corners as on the old style board, but a central safety zone. A feature of the new board is the fact that very few draws result. In eight years of championship play in British Columbia only three draws are recalled.
 By his victory yesterday evening Mr. Ricketts will receive the handsome challenge cup donated by Hugh J. McIntyre of The Sidney Review.

An attractive programme has been arranged by the Sunday School of St. Alban's Church for the concert to be given in the church hall on Monday evening to raise funds for the annual Sunday School outing. The programme will include a playlet entitled "Reformation," which is to be given by the Girls' Friendly Society of Christ Church Cathedral, and a duet will be given by Doris McBain and Percy Sedgeman, two young pianists, who won honors in the recent Musical Festival.

CLEVER SKETCH IS PRESENTED

Rotarians Enjoy Amusing Playlet at Weekly Luncheon Here

Visiting Basketballers and Blue Ribbons Guests, Presentation Made

"Is the Customer Ever Wrong?" was the title of an amusing sketch presented by members of the Spokes Club at the Rotary luncheon in the Empress Hotel to-day. The story was based on the theory that the customer is always right, with Aid. James Adam taking the leading role as manager of the "Peculiar Grocery."

Those taking part were: Rotarians J. Morse Hatt, W. Maynard, J. V. Johnson, Arthur Brown, Edmond Woodward, Herbert J. Pendray, S. Armstrong, George Plowman, W. Pinfold, Dr. Vernon Taylor, Charles Barker, J. Walford, A. P. Dave and J. Percy Watson. Bob Webb directed.

Members of the Windsor-Walkerville Alumni and Blue Ribbons basketball teams were guests at the luncheon, with officials of the respective teams.

The visitors were introduced by Aid. Adam, who briefly reviewed the history of the Alumni team since its formation in 1928, under the management of George Foster, its present manager.

Another pleasing ceremony was a presentation made by Percy Watson, on behalf of the club, to Major Harry Watts, who has recently returned to live with his daughter in Calgary. Major Watts was presented with a club button. The valuable service which the major has rendered to the club and community at large during his residence here, was referred to by Mr. Watson, who valued him as one of Rotary's best members.

In replying, Major Watts spoke of the fine work promoted by Rotary. It had gradually grown from a fraternal organization into one which promotes international peace, he stated.

A vocal solo was contributed to the programme by Rotarian James Milne, Winnipeg.

Following up his work to bring all music clubs into a Dominion-wide federation, Capt. J. S. Atkinson, director of the Canadian Bureau for the Advancement of Music, is in the city to-day from Toronto.

The majority of the clubs throughout the country, he said, were in favor of the federation. Through the medium of class work inaugurated and consistently developed, through the Canadian Bureau much has been done in the promotion of music in the schools.

During the day Capt. Atkinson met members of the Music Teachers' Association and took up the question of class work and later the standardization of clubs. He is staying at the Empress Hotel.

He plans to leave for the mainland to address the Parent-Teacher Association in New Westminster tomorrow afternoon on piano class work. He expects to return to Victoria at the week-end.

BLAND CHILDREN CASE UP AGAIN

The case of the five children of Charles A. Bland and Jean Bland was up again to-day when before Mr. Justice Fisher of the Supreme Court, C. O'Halloran moved by way of habeas corpus with certiorari to have them transferred from the non-secular Children's Aid Society of Victoria and placed in the Catholic Children's Aid Society in Vancouver.

Harold A. Beckwith, counsel for the Children's Aid, and Mr. O'Halloran acted by affidavit and by reference to evidence at former hearings, how the father had been sent to jail, with Mrs. Bland now living at the Rock Bay Apartment. The children were once before placed in orphanages on the island, and then returned to the father and mother when they were living together in the city. Then by a court order of February 16, 1932, under the Infants Act, the children were removed from their parents as improper guardians and placed with the Children's Aid Society here. On January 30 last application was made to have the children removed from the jurisdiction of the Children's Aid and placed in a Catholic institution, because the father was a Catholic and the mother, although not originally a Catholic, had agreed to the arrangement.

The argument to-day is proceeding on legal points and is continuing.

Hudson's Bay Defeats Saanich To Win Trophy

Capture Soccer Knockout Cup With 2 to 1 Victory Over Suburbanites

Don Fish Scores Winning Counter on Freak Rush Into Goal

Don Fish's goal on a rebound from Ferguson's kick in the dying minutes of the game yesterday afternoon won the Rennie & Taylor cup for the Hudson's Bay eleven, playing against Saanich United in the final of the knockout series for Wednesday League soccer teams. The final score was 2 to 1.

It was stated yesterday that league officials may cancel the McKay Shield knockout series for mid-week teams owing to the lateness of the season. Definite announcement will be made later.

The first goal of the game came from Don Fish, who tallied during a scramble in front of the net, to give Saanich a 1 to 0 lead. This they held until the end of the half. Bays two counters were registered by George Davis from a penalty shot and by Fish when he charged. Goalie Gillian.

Bays opened on the attack and the stellar defensive work of the Bay net, O'Connell, saved the suburbanites on several occasions. About ten minutes after the start, Saanich retained with forward-rushes, which were stopped by Hudson's Bay back division and goalie Percy Shrimpton.

During rushes, Hudson's Bay forwards were a little slow in following up their shots and missed several opportunities early in the game.

NEWELL SCORES

Newell's counter came after the first half was twenty-five minutes old. He took possession of the ball near the penalty area, maneuvered in close and during a scramble, banged a hard drive past Shrimpton.

Saanich was on the offensive when the second half opened and looked dangerous many times, but the shots were wide. Shrimpton turned nicely to relieve the Bays, and earned in an excellent performance for the winners.

Fish passed up a beautiful opportunity to tie the count during the final stanza, when he booted over the ball after receiving a pass from Collier at close range.

BAYS SCORE TWO

A terrific penalty drive by George Davis, who was fouled by Keiman, evened the score. Bays appeared to take heart and began to keep the ball in Saanich territory. The deciding marker came about ten minutes before time, when Ferguson drove a hard drive to the net, which goalie Gillian saw for some time. Both men were slightly injured on the play.

The teams follow:

Hudson's Bay—Shrimpton, Coste, Menzies, Davis, Mercer, Oakman, Ferguson, Fish, King, Bentley, and Collier.

Saanich United—Gillian, O'Connell, Keiman, Keiman, Leis, Williams, Keimer, Kennedy, Newell and Shanks.

First Duty of Depression Victim Is to Cheer Up For Sake of Family—Foolish Husband Who Wants Every Thought of Wife Centred on Him

DEAR MISS DIX—On account of the depression my father has come to live with us, his home and money and job being lost. We have a small apartment, one child and a limited salary. He has been with us now nearly two years. Naturally enough, he is plunged into the deepest depression and continually preaches doom and destruction, what the world is coming to, and goes over and over his misfortunes. You cannot blame him, but he is driving my husband wild and he says my father must go, as he cannot work and then come home each night to such a gloomy household, and our place is so little that we cannot get away from each other, and with the baby it is only rarely that we can go out at night. My father is already so unhappy that I cannot bear to hurt him any more and there is no place he can go except to a cheap boarding house. But my husband says that he cannot stand the added strain of listening to my father's wails after he has worked hard all day, and that if my father stays he is going to leave. So what must I do?

A VICTIM OF DEPRESSION.
Answer—There is only one thing you can do in these circumstances, and that is to tell your father he will have to either cheer up or leave. Your own living and that of your child depends upon your husband. So does your happiness and the well-being of all of you.

It is easy to see how your sympathy for your father tears at your heart and how almost impossible it is to send him away in his despair to live with strangers, but you must also see your husband's point of view and realize how it eats the last bit of courage in him to come back from work to a home surcharged with gloom and to have to listen to a Jeremiah all evening.

Perhaps if you would tell your father this and make him realize how depressing his gloomy conversation is and how his lamentations get on your husband's nerves he would at least keep silent, even if he cannot chirk up a bit.

It seems to me that in these dark and troublous times one of our principal duties to our fellow creatures is to scatter seeds of gladness instead of planting a fresh crop of grief. We should not add to the burdens of others by superimposing our own upon them, and to that end we should keep our worries and our anxieties to ourselves as much as possible.

After all, talking about our misfortunes does not mitigate them. It doesn't give us back our jobs, nor restore our lost money, nor make the bad stocks we've invested in good. But when we spend an hour weeping over our bad luck we leave our friends just that much more sadden with sympathy and misery and hopelessness. We have sent their spirits down to zero without raising our own.

During the war the English had a wonderful slogan that they used even when things were at their blackest and worst. They cried to each other: "Are we downhearted?" and the answer came back in a thunderous "No!" that stiffened their backs and made them fight on until victory was won. We might well make that catch-phrase our own now. We need to call messages of cheer and hope and comfort to each other. Something that will put fresh heart and courage in those who are making a desperate fight against desperate odds and who need to be bucked up instead of cast down.

And, after all, we are weak and cowardly to give in to despair just because things have gone temporarily blooey. We have this big, rich country of ours. We have the brains and the manhood that made it what it is. The sun still shines. The harvests grow. Nothing in Nature nor in our people has changed. God is in His heaven and all would be well with the world if we talked cheer instead of gloom, if we worked instead of sitting down in tears. If we do not let ourselves get downhearted.

So away with gloom. Let's canonize a new saint: Saint Pollyanna. DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a young married woman, with a good husband, but he objects very much to my friends coming to see me in the afternoon when he is not at home. He does not want me to even talk with the neighbors. Says that when a woman is married she should forget friends and think only of her husband and child. This causes argument and makes us both unhappy.

MRS. R. G.
Answer—Your husband has certainly prehistoric ideas about women. He should have lived in the days when husbands locked their wives in their houses when they went away and took the key with them.

His objection to your having your women friends come to see you in the afternoon and having a bit of gossip with a neighbor is too ridiculous to argue about. Just laugh off his strictures and pay no attention to them, and after a while he will come to see himself how silly they are.

When a man says that after a woman is married she should have no thought except for her husband and children, he doesn't realize how much trouble he is preparing for himself. For, if all a woman has to think about is her home, she grows narrow and dull and has nothing to talk about except the price of butchers' meat and what time she hangs out the wash and how much trouble the children are and how many hours she stood over the cooking stove getting dinner. There are no women so peevish and fretful and complaining and nagging as those who have no interests outside of their families.

And if a woman concentrates all of her thoughts on her husband he is certainly in for a bad time because she will not only see every fault and harp upon it, but she will be suspicious of everything he does. She will put him through the third degree of a cross-examination.

The wise man encourages his wife to have just as many and varied outside interests as she can. "That keeps her bright and happy and makes her an interesting companion." DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—Don't you think there are a lot of men who might be described as square pegs in round holes?

MRS. A. E. M.
Answer—Practically all of the failures in life are people who are misfits, who are trying to do something that Nature never intended them to do. Sometimes by accident they drift into the wrong vocations. Sometimes they are thrust upon them. But always the are unhappy, restless, dissatisfied, doing whatever they undertake to do badly and inefficiently.

You see plenty of carpenters who would have made good professional men, and plenty of professional men who would have made good carpenters. Preachers who would have made fine blacksmiths, and blacksmiths who have the gift of gab. There are plenty of women who can never learn how to cook or keep house who would make wonderful business executives, and plenty of business women who will never learn to sell goods or to typewrite, but who are born chefs. There are plenty of men and women who should never marry because they are celibate by nature, and plenty of old maids and bachelors who would have made wonderful wives and husbands and mothers and fathers.

The most important thing in life is to study our own aptitudes and then get into our own little holes. DOROTHY DIX.

African Adventures

BATTLES WITH RHINOS

In company with Arthur Dugmore, noted photographer of wild animals, a big game hunter named James L. Clark entered a stretch of "rhino country" in Africa.

One day they caught sight of two full-grown rhinos. Dugmore suggested a plan to kill one of them. He suggested that he could take another one. At this moment, birds which had been eating "ticks" on the backs of the animals rose into the air. This gave warning to the rhinos that something was wrong. They raised their heads and caught sight of the men. Then they started to charge.

Clark had a double-barrelled gun. There was only one bullet for each beast. The first rhino dropped at a distance of about fifty yards, but the second was not brought down until it was within eleven yards.

Fortune was with Clark that day. A hunter is not always able to kill a rhino with a single shot; in fact the chances are against such a thing.

At a later time, Clark, Dugmore and a negro guide caught sight of a rhino sleeping in the grass just twenty yards ahead of them. Dugmore made his camera ready, but somehow the beast was awakened, and with hardly a moment's delay charged toward Clark.

Clark fired both barrels of his gun at the rhino, but failed to bring him down. Then he drew a revolver and fired into the face of the animal, side-stepping at the same moment to avoid the lunge of a great, sharp horn.

It took the rhino a few seconds to wheel his body around and renew the attack. Again Clark jumped to the side as he fired his revolver.

With more charging and more side-stepping the battle was kept up until Clark's revolver was empty. At this point the rhino turned his charge toward Dugmore, who leapt to safety just as the negro guide drove a spear into the beast's side.

You can never be sure what a rhino will do next. The spear wound seemed to make this one feel that he had fought long enough. With six or eight bullets in his body, he trotted away. The men did not pursue him. They, too, felt that they had had enough for one day.

MOVIE HEADS ON GAME HUNT

Hollywood Officials Leave Vancouver To-day on Hunting Trip to Mount Robson District

Vancouver, May 4.—Bound for the Canadian Rockies in British Columbia on a hunting trip, a party of six important movie officials from leading studios in Hollywood, left Vancouver to-day aboard the Continental Limited of the Canadian National Railways. The party consists of Barry L. Zeacock, vice-president of the Twentieth Century Corporation, and Raymond Enright, Raymond Griffith, Lloyd Bacon, John Adolfi and Sam Engle, all directors and studio officials of Warner Bros.

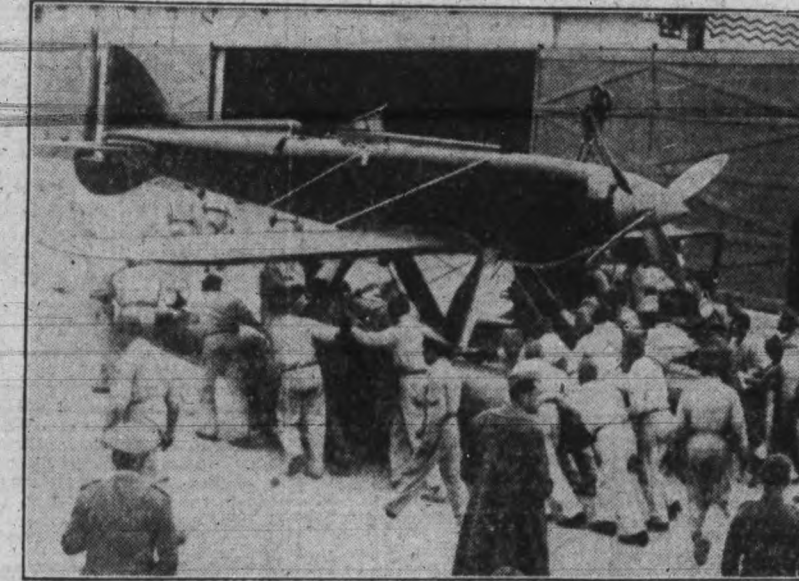

According to Mr. Zeacock the party will leave the train at Valemount, twenty-one miles west of Mount Robson, which is now well known as big game country. There they will be joined by Roy Macgregor, expert outfitter and guide. Under his guidance they will hunt bear with rifle and camera through the Rockies and down the Columbia River.

They anticipate excitement aplenty during their adventure. Zeacock states that Enright, Adolfi and himself were members of a party which hunted in the Mount Robson district during the fall of 1930, at which time trophies of the finest type, including mountain sheep, deer, moose and caribou were brought out by them. He now possesses animal trophies obtained from various parts of the world and has no doubt that this collection will be greatly augmented at the conclusion of the present trip. He also said that the Mount Robson district is as fine a hunting territory as can be found anywhere. He added that a location for the filming of a picture will be considered.

THE PLANE THAT BROKE THE WORLD'S RECORD

Here mechanics are seen pushing the seaplane away to a hangar after it had been piloted to a new world's speed record of 437 miles an hour over Lake Garda, in Italy. The Italian flier, Angelo, who achieved this remarkable feat, is the last of six daring aviators who have striven to capture the speed honors from Great Britain. Five of them lost their lives in previous attempts. The British record, set two years ago by Lieut. Stainforth, was 408 miles an hour.
